NEW LONDON, Conn., June 28.-Yale won the eight-oared 'varsity shell race this afternoon, beating Harvard by about six lengths. With the four-oared and freshmen races won, and handsomely won, too, and with a lead when nearing the finish in the big 'varsity event defeat came to Harvard in a sudden and unexpected manner. Harding, the stroke, who had replaced the disabled Captain Higginson, collapsed before the three-and-one-half-mile flag was reached and Harvard finished with seven oars. An hour's delay was caused after the freshmen contest by the course, however, and the river became as smooth as a pond. At 1:41 the pistol was vard dug into the water first and the prow ever, was an admirable one, and so little was there to choose between the two that only those on the official boats were able to credit Harvard with the advantage which was really her's. When the rush of the start had given way to the four-mile gait both crews were pulling thirty-six to the minute. Both were rowing cleanly and strongly at a thirty-two clip. Between the half and three-quarters, howover, there seemed to be trouble with No. 6 in the Harvard eight. In the distance it oked like a broken slide, but No. 6 was soon at it again and with just the same rhythmic precision as before. Yale had gained perceptibly, and as the line was apoached the nose of the New Haven boat oked itself to the fore. LONDON, June 28,-The exposures regarding the hospitals in South Africa, which began with a three-column letter in the Times, on Monday, from Mr. W. A. > The War Office has issued correspondence with Lord Roberts regarding the charges of Mr. Burdett-Coutts. On June 4 his attention was called in brief telegrams to the allegations, and also to other complaints of general breakdown in the hospital system. Two days later he replied in part as follows: "The principal medical officer reported that arrangements at Kroonstad were in all respects in good order, and Lord Methuen said they were satisfactory. I was deeply distressed at being unable to make suitable arrangements for the sick on our first arrivel at Kroonstad, but it is obvious that a certain amount of suffering s inseparable in the rapid advance of a large army into an enemy's country. On June 20 the War Office cabled Lord Roberts that disquieting reports regarding the hospital were accumulating, and asked him if anything could be done, and particularly whether any more nurses were needed. On June 25 Lord Roberts, replied, saying that he did not wish to shirk responsioility or to screen the shortcomings of the medical corps, and he suggested a committee of inquiry. He said there had been an abnormal number of sick at Bloemfontein. and the terribly unsanitary condition of the camp at Paardeberg, where the only water available for drinking flowed from the Boer camp, higher up, where the river was crowded with decomposing animals and also a considerable number of wounded after the fight on March 10. To improvise accommodations at Bloemfontein for such a number, which had become 2,000 before he left Bloemfontein, was no easy task, said Lord Roberts. No tents were carried and the public buildings had to be turned into hospitals. In three months there had been 6,369 admissions to the hospitals of patients suffering from enteric fever, while the deaths numbered 1,370, about 21 per cent. Lord Roberts observed that he did not know whether this would be an abnormal rate in civil hospitals in peace times, but if the rate were abnormal, it was due to the exhausted state of the men and not to the neglect of the medical corps.

NO PLACE FOR FORTUNE SEEKERS. stood among other causes, to labor troubles. Julian Ralph Says South Africa Is Not

> Correspondence of the Associated Press LONDON, June 20 .- Julian Ralph contributes to the Daily Mail some warnings to those who intend to emigrate to South Africa. He says: "I fear that most of these men will regret having asked even the barest living of South Africa. Although the most popular sayings about that unatractive region are such as to deter immigration, the idea that fortunes are to be made there by men without capital remains firmly rooted. To be strictly just, there is coming at the next hearing of the case.

BRITISH WHIP BOERS a reasonably rich region in that part of the Cape Colony which is called the Hex River country. Wheat and fruit and the vine flourish in that section, to replace on these good, genuine farming is carried on there and the people are prosperous. But the reland is all taken up and held at a very high price, and those who are on it, and especially the dominant Dutch, will not sell Instead they want more acres, even though they cannot till what they have, for the Boer is a land-loving, land-proud mortal who estimates his social position by the number of his acres.

"There is good grain-producing soil in the eastern part of the Orange River Colony, and the ravage of war may send a few-a very few-of these farms into the market but the price will be beyond the purses of the average fortune-seekers. There is not and will not be, any of this land to be picked up on what is called a settler's claim-that s, free to whosoever will build on it and work it. In the Transvaal, likewise, there are good belts and desert belts, and there is plenty of unworked land, I believe, in the dry and hilly upper half of the country, but the soil which is productive, even in the way of pasturage, is not in the market. "If any man thinks to find new gold or diamond mines he may as well be told that the chances of that are precisely equal to his chances of having at his disposal the time, money and expert knowledge which the great mining corporations have utilized in studying the entire country and in taking liens or paying yearly premiums for the first right to work such soils when they mains open to newcomers in the greater part of these colonies is the ostrich; at least, so I was informed by a great many shrewd and successful men who live in Natal, the Orange River Colony and the Transvaal. But breeding ostriches requires money-for the land and the birds-to start with. And one must know or learn the methods by which a profit is to be had in that industry. You cannot raise ostriches as you take a snapshot photograph-by men-especially among the Australians and (fewer) Canadians-who talked of remaining n South Africa, that I made it my business while I was in Cape Town, Kimberley and Bloemfontein to ask the leading men for their knowledge and opinions as to the inducements the country offers to immigrants. It may have merely happened so, but I did not meet a man who favored the oming of a large number of new settlers. All who were of British blood wished for more men of their own race there-in num bers sufficient to outvote the Dutch, but they could not promise the newcomers a living. It is as true as when Mr. Bryce Autralian mounted, a fifteen-pounder and wrote it that South Africa is a vast solltude with a few oases of population, and taining life and its few openings for industry unaided by capital."

Officers' Posse Had Lots of Fun. but Failed to Secure the Principals.

Captain Kruger, Captain of Detectives Kinney, Sergeants Crane, Lowe and Wallace, Detective Morgan and Patrolmen Crabtree and Lee were sporting last night. They went to see a prize fight. The fight was to have been between Jim Lewis and Frank Robinson. The officers did not see the fight nor did those who paid at the barbed wire fence, but two pairs of gloves, two coils of rope, three gasoline torches, one coal oil lamp, a bucket and one towel are at police headquarters waiting to be claimed by the owners.

Late last evening the police were given a tip that a prize fight was to be pulled off without a dissenting voice. near the fair grounds. They drove out late to the place named, but could find nothing of it. Finally a man came along, and, in taken before the noon recess, and when the answer to inquiries, took the officers a results had been recorded one man at least short distance and pointed down the road. "See them lights," he said; "that's them. I guess they's at it by now." The officers did not wait for more. Off they went.

Near Hammond's Park, north of the fair grounds, a new bridge is being erected. It is to be a covered bridge and as yet only one portion of it has been constructed. The approach to the bridge from the present roadway has not been filled in and the one section stops right over the edge of the main part of the creek. The promoters as a likely place in which a fight could be pulled off and entrance to the bridge was secured by use of a gang plank laid from the edge of the bridge to the roadway embankment. A ring had been pitched, the ropes were in place and the lights had been hung on the side. All was ready for the opening round, when the disturbance The officers in their hurry ran amuck

The police were in a playful mood, and often during the search when they heard a man running would say, "There he goes! Shoot Don't let him get away." Such remarks were almost immediately followed by a splash. Sergeant Wallace took after the man who had charge of the towel. In order to save himself he threw the towel in the sergeant's face and then plunged off the bridge into the water. A noise of crackling branches was heard. Five men were found perched in a tall tree. One of them was on the topmost branch. The convention reassembled at 10 o'clock this morning. Seven more ballots were acknowledged that he was beaten. He was Dexter M. Ferry, of Detroit, the man with the strongest delegation and most perfect organization behind him. A stampede to O'Donnell was attempted and it looked for a time as though the move would be successful. But an unlucky break came, Montcalm county switching to Bliss instead of O'Donnell. The Wayne county men caucused when they saw their forces were not intact, and mace the miscided to stick to Ferry. Had they not done so O'Donnell would have had within thirtyseven votes of Bliss's total, and might have beaten him out. The eighteenth ballot stood: Bliss, 329; O'Donnell, 194; Stearns, 181; Ferry 196; Osborne, 31; Campbell, 13. The next ballot was the fatal one. The long-expected stampede had come, and no name was heard but that of Bliss. He was nominated before the call was half completed, and a Jackson man interrupted with a motion to make it unanimous. The Ferry eaders were still stubborn, however, and demanded that the roll call be finished. The Wayne delegation alone cast their votes for Ferry, the few counties which had stood by O'Donnell changing when the final result When Wayne county was called a member of that delegation rose and announced that the ninety-five votes would follow the others and recorded them for Bliss. But there was apparently some discord in the delegation, for he was dragged back to his seat and another man clamored for recognition. This precipitated a wrangle, and several of the delegates were instantly on their feet, many of them assuming a threatening attitude. When order was restored a member of the delegation demanded a roll call of the county. It resulted in a unanimous vote for Ferry and was so recorded. Many of the candidates for minor offices were withdrawn and the remainder of the
